Endoanal Ultrasound Training Session – organized by BK Medical

This session will provide the opportunity to practise the technique of endoanal ultrasound using simulators. The session will cover normal anatomy and the common pathologies found – sphincter tears and anal sepsis. Places are limited to 35 and will be awarded on a first-come first served basis.

Delegates who book this session will be requested to send a cheque for £50 payable to the Bowel Disease Research Foundation by a specified date as a returnable deposit. If the deposit is not received by deadline, the place will be released for reallocation. If the delegate attends the session their cheque will be returned to them.
